Wesla Whitfield inhabits that indeterminate zone where jazz and cabaret meet.

"This wonderful singer thrills me when I hear her." -- Tony Bennett

*"The most assured and affecting jazz-cabaret singer to arrive in New York in many years....." --
New Yorker Magazine*

" and in the course of this one song she manages to sound as languorous as Peggy Lee, as clear and wide-eyed as Judy Garland, as hazy and rasping as Janis Joplin after a three-day bender – yet though it alludes to past greats, Whitfield's style is entirely her own." O Magazine
